

Embedding Democratic Values

Social Transition and Political Socialization in Central and Eastern Europe

Central European University, Popper Room
December 4, 2015

Alexandru BALTAG is Doctor in International Relations and European Studies, obtaining the PhD at the University “Babes-Bolyai” from Cluj-Napoca, Romania in 2012. Between 2011 and 2015 he worked as Senior Consultant on foreign policy and reintegration (on the Transnistrian conflict settlement) to the Administration of the President of the Republic of Moldova. Currently, he is adviser to the Deputy Prime Minister, Minister of Economy of Moldova on the international economic cooperation domain. From 2010 to present is an associated expert at the Foreign Policy Association of Moldova. He is the author of several analytical articles on international relations, European integration, the Transnistrian conflict, energy and geopolitical issue, published in France, Germany, Romania, Lithuania, Russia, Turkey and Moldova.

Victoria BUCATARU is Program Director at the Foreign Policy Association of Moldova. She holds a bachelor and MA degree in international relations, political and administrative sciences from the Moldova State University. In 2005-2010, Ms. Bucataru worked as a lecturer at the International Relations Department, Moldova State University as well as was involved in the activity of several non-governmental organizations such as the Institute for Development and Social Initiatives, Information and Documentation Centre on NATO, European Institute for Political Studies. In the period 2010-2012, Ms. Bucataru has been involved in the Joint research consortium “Security and Development Research within the Wider Europe Initiative Security Cluster” supported by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Finland. Mr. Bucataru has been working for the Foreign Policy Association since 2009. She is the author of several publications on foreign and security policies, and Moldova’s relation with the European Union which can be found on the Foreign Policy Association website -www.ape.md. Ms. Bucataru has provided expertise in the field of foreign and security policies to national and international organizations in the framework of various thematic programs.

Olga GYARFASOVA is sociologist, Assistant Professor at the Comenius University in Bratislava, as well as Analyst at the Institute for Public Affairs, an independent public policy research think-tank. She graduated in sociology and holds PhD in comparative political science. In her work, she focuses on public opinion, electoral studies and political culture. She is author, co-author and co-editor of dozens of expert publications, among them Country in a Motion (2001); Democracy and Populism in Central Europe: The Visegrad Elections and Their Aftermath (2007); Slovakia Votes. European and Presidential Elections 2009 (2009); Cultural Diversity in Context of Labour Migration: Trends and Challenges for Public Policy (2009); Economic Aspects of Migration and Integration of Migrants in Slovakia (2010); Slovak Election '10. Chance for a Change (2011). She has been working on many domestic and international projects, for example: she is national coordinator of the European Election Studies and principal investigator of the prestigious project Comparative Studies of Electoral Systems. She has been also involved in the longitudinal EU-wide research Migration Integration Policy Index (MIPEX) and has been working on several projects focused on integration of migrants in Slovakia.

Miklós HARASZTI is Director of Research on Human Rights at the CEU Center for EU Enlargement Studies. He is a Hungarian author, professor, and human rights promoter. His books, including A Worker in a Worker's State and The Velvet Prison, have been translated into many languages. He was a founder of Hungary's democracy and free press movement in the 1970s. In 1989, he participated in the "Roundtable Negotiations" on the transition to free elections. As a member of Hungary's parliament in the 1990s, he authored the country's first laws on press freedom. From 2004 to 2010, he directed the media freedom watchdog institution of the 56-nation Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE). Recently, he headed the OSCE's observation missions for elections in the U.S. and in Kazakhstan. He has taught at several universities, including Bard College, Northwestern University, and the New School. In the past two years, he gave courses on global press freedom issues at Columbia University.

Jan HUSÁK is elected Board Member of the Czech Council of Children and Youth since 2009. At the Youth Council, he initiated successful and European-wide best practice youth participatory project “Have Your Say - Structured Dialogue of Youth”. At this time, he is appointed as a Coordinator of the National Working Group for the Structured Dialogue with Youth in the Czech Republic, and is also dealing with youth policy and participation research activities. For 2016-2017, he is elected as a member of the Advisory Council on Youth by the Council of Europe. He publishes regularly about civic and political participation and youth policy issues in the Czech Republic and abroad, and contributes to Czech and international conferences. He is a co-author of the books Youth Policy Review in the Czech Republic as well as Political Parties and Nationalism in Visegrad Countries. Within his Ph.D. study in political science at University of Economics in Prague, he researches the phenomenon of co-management and its impact on democratization of sectoral policies.

Erich KRÍŽ is studied National Economics at Faculty of Economics of University of Economics in Prague. He acts as project manager at EUROPEUM Institute for European Policy. He has been cooperating with EUROPEUM mainly on economic topics; he deals with foreign investments, economic comparison of V4 countries and international trade. Erich is also focused on the topic of active citizen participation of young people. As a voluntary member of Czech Army, he is also interested in the problems of European security.

Tomasz MAZUREK is a Member of the Institute for Eastern Initiatives and Vice President of the “MiędzyUszami” – Foundation for Education of Deaf People. He is a writer of educational content and workshops, scriptwriter, film editor, documentary film producer. For the past few years he has been participating in projects related to the Polish minority in Ukraine and Kazakhstan. He works on problems of people with disabilities in Poland and in Eastern Europe as well as the status of NGOs and their challenges in Poland. At the workshop he represents the Kosciuszko Institute from Kraków.

Dániel MIKECZ is a Junior Research Fellow at the Institute of Political Science at the Hungarian Academy of Sciences. He graduated in Political Science at Eötvös Loránd University Budapest. His doctoral thesis is about the Hungarian global justice movement. Since 2015, he is also a Research Fellow at Republikon Institute. From 2010 onward, he holds various courses at the Eötvös Loránd University on protest movements and political participation.

Rebecca MURRAY is a Research Fellow at Research Center of the Slovak Foreign Policy Association as well as Editor-in-chief of the webzine Zahraničná politika (Foreign Policy). Rebecca graduated in European Studies and International Relations from the Faculty of Social and Economic Studies at the Comenius University in Bratislava in 2012. She works with SFPA since 2008. Her research and work focuses on EU's foreign policy and relations mainly with its Eastern neighborhood via the Eastern Partnership policy, Europeanization and projects related to transition and experience sharing of Visegrad countries (mainly Slovakia) with Eastern European and Western Balkan countries. Previously, she also worked at the Centre for European and North Atlantic Affairs (CENAA). Rebecca also works as Online Editor and Directress at the civic association Democracy in Central Europe, publisher of the webzine V4 Revue.

Anton PISARENKO is Project Coordinator at the Institute for Euro-Atlantic Cooperation. He is in his final year of his Master's Program in Foreign Policy at the Institute of International Relations of the Kyiv National Taras Shevchenko University. Originally, from Mariupol, Donetsk region, he graduated from Mariupol State University having completed successfully his Bachelor degree in International Relations. He was actively involved in the civil society life in Mariupol being a member of the local international relations expert community NGO "Dipcorpus". He was one of the organizers of the first "Euromaidan" in Mariupol. He was also a member of the Youth Delegation of Ukraine to the Council of Europe, Strasbourg (December 2014) and has a journalistic background. His research interests lie particularly in the field of political ideologies and European integration.

Bogdan RADU is Visiting Researcher of the CEU Center for EU Enlargement Studies since 2012. He received his MA in European politics from the University of Manchester (MA) and his Ph.D. Political Science from the University of California, Irvine, USA. He completed his doctoral degree in 2007, with the dissertation Traditional Believers and Democratic Citizens. A Contextualized Analysis of the Effects of Religion on Support for Democracy in East Central Europe. Since 2007, he holds a lecturer position in the Department of Political Science at Babes-Bolyai University. His research revolved around issues of political culture, democratic transition and consolidation and comparative studies of public opinion in the context of an enlarged Europe. He conducted research on religious values and political beliefs, for both adults and the youth, focusing on the relationships between religiosity and religious participation on the one hand, and political participation and support for democracy on the other hand. More recently, Bogdan became interested in studying the concept of public opinion in the realm of international governance, especially focusing on international development. He is committed to interdisciplinary approaches and the combined use of empirical and interpretive methods.

Adam REICHARDT is the Editor in chief of New Eastern Europe, an English-language bimonthly magazine published in Poland dedicated to Central and Eastern European affairs. He previously spent eight years in public policy in Washington DC, as well as a large portion of his studies in Kraków, Poland, where he now permanently resides. Adam has an MA in Public Administration and a BA in Political Science and International Relations. In 2012, he was nominated for the European Press Prize in the category of “Editing” for his work on New Eastern Europe and was most recently named to the “New Europe 100” list of the region's top innovators.

Zsuzsanna VÉGH is a Research Fellow at the Center for EU Enlargement Studies. Her research focuses on the Visegrad cooperation, the Visegrad countries’ foreign, security and international development policy, as well as the European Union’s relations with its Eastern neighborhood (Eastern Partnership). At CENS, she has been engaged, among others, in multiple research projects focusing on the Europeanization/transition experience of the Visegrad countries and its relevance for countries in the Eastern neighborhood. She holds a Master's degree in international relations and European studies from the Central European University (2012) and one in international studies from the Eötvös Loránd University in Budapest (2011). She also studied at the Jagiellonian University in Kraków, Poland. She joined the Center for EU

Enlargement Studies in August 2012. Previously, she worked at the Hungarian Institute of International Affairs as an adjunct fellow.

Maria ZOLKINA has been working as a Political Analyst at the Ilko Kucheriv Democratic Initiatives Foundation since 2012. Her main field of research interest includes Ukraine - EU political relations, public perceptions of European and Euro-Atlantic perspectives within Ukraine, Eastern policy of the EU, in particular, Eastern partnership, Europeanization role for domestic transformations. Since 2015, Maria is a member of Expert Council under Parliamentary Committee on European integration. She obtained her Master Degree in Political Science (German and European studies) at the Joint Programme of the National University of “Kyiv-Mohyla Academy”, Ukraine, and the Friedrich Schiller University, Germany; completed her PhD Studies under the “Kyiv-Mohyla Academy.” Maria was awarded Research Fellowship by German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD) in 2014 and Research Fellowship by Policy Association for an Open Society (PASOS) fellow in 2013 (Policy study on Slovakia-Ukraine, comparative study on European integration effects for democratic transition). Maria is author and co-author of various analytical papers, especially about European integration-related issues, and is a speaker at public discussions and conferences both in Ukraine and abroad.

